2015–16 PARTICIPATION IN FIELD TESTS AND SPECIAL STUDIES

Earlier this month, the State Board of Education (SBE) was informed of the field tests and special studies that will be administered during the 2015–16 school year. The field tests and special studies for this school year include the North Carolina Proof of Concept Study in English Language Arts/Reading at grade 6 and the North Carolina Proof of Concept Study in Mathematics at grade 5. Additionally, the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) will oversee computer-based pilot tests in reading, mathematics, and writing in grades 4, 8, and 12.

All field tests/special studies will be administered at a subset of schools that have been sampled for participation. All students within the sampled grade and subject area of a school will participate in the field tests/special studies. A list of the individual schools selected to participate is attached to this memo. The LEA/Charter School Test Coordinator will be responsible for sharing locally.

Please remember that field testing and special studies are key components of the process for developing tests and making programmatic decisions. The purpose of field tests and special studies is to collect the data necessary to generate high-quality and technically-sound state tests and to inform our assessment practices. Specifically, the objectives are:

- To try out the questions and the tests in part or in their entirety in an environment that simulates an operational test.
- To generate data that will assist the North Carolina Department of Public Instruction (NCDPI) in making decisions about each test question and each test as a whole.
- To generate data that will assist the test publisher in determining the level of difficulty of each question.
- To generate data that will assist the test publisher in determining if questions are biased in favor of one group over another.
- To determine the appropriateness of the content measured and the appropriateness of the test questions.
- To determine the level of accessibility to the questions and the test by students with special needs.
- To determine the time test administrators need to administer the tests and the time students need for a fair administration of the tests.
- To collect data used to establish and/or equate forms of the tests, the scales for the tests, and to set or link performance standards (achievement levels) for the tests.
- To collect data to provide documentation about the overall technical quality of the tests for the U.S. Department of Education and other stakeholders.
- To collect data that establish and maintain the credibility of the testing program and answer questions about the program asked by the North Carolina General Assembly, the U.S. Department of Education, and the public.

SAMPLE PARENT LETTER

Dear Parent or Guardian:

(Insert school name) has been selected by the North Carolina Department of Public Instruction (NCDPI) to participate in the following field test/special study administration: (Insert name of field test/special study).

This means your child will assist educators in collecting data needed to develop high-quality, technically-sound state tests. For example, field testing/special studies determine: how effective a test is under conditions that closely simulate the “real” test environment; the level of difficulty of a test question; and how appropriate a test is for students with special needs. The NCDPI has made every effort to limit the number of field tests/special studies at each school.

There is no need for your child to study in preparation for the field test/special study; however, we do ask that students do their best and receive plenty of rest the night before the test. Your child’s grades or progress in school will not be affected in any way by participating. Results about individual students or schools will not be reported. The data collected will be used for the purpose of test development only.

The field test/special study will take a minimal amount of time, and is scheduled to take place on (Insert test date). The test will take approximately (Insert time) minutes to complete.

For more information about the North Carolina Testing Program, please visit <http://www.ncpublicschools.org/accountability/testing>. If you have any questions or concerns, please contact _____ at _____.
(Insert name of contact and email/phone)

Sincerely,

(Insert name and title of local official)
